

PARTICIPATIONS

Back to 1747, James Lind had never heard about clinical trials – nor had anyone else. A Scottish naval surgeon, he found himself on a Royal Navy ship full of sailors sick with scurvy. His revolutionary ideas saved their life and laid the foundation for modern clinical trials. Enjoy the film and discover how they work today.

Source URL: https://hecrin.pte.hu/en/clinical_trials/participations